

Blackburn with Darwen E-Safety Charter.

We are ALL responsible for treating everyone online with respect.

We will only use appropriate behaviour, language and imagery.

We will only download or access content that is legal and does not breach copyright laws.

Rights

Responsibilities

You have the right to enjoy the internet and all the fun and safe things it has to offer.

You have the responsibility to use the internet sensibly, legally and not to the detriment of others.

You have the right to feel safe when using computers and modern technologies.

You have the responsibility to use technologies legally and respectfully and to inform the relevant authorities, should you encounter inappropriate, illegal or harmful content.

You have the right to be safe from bullying on the internet and the right to report it.

You have the responsibility to treat others with respect and to report online bullying.

You have the right to explore the internet and to question any information you find.

You have the responsibility to do this safely, sensibly and legally and to check any information before using it.

You have the right to keep information about you private and to only tell people what you want them to know about yourself.

You have the responsibility to provide information that is not misleading, to keep your own data safe and not to misuse any information you have about others.

You have the right to decide whether or not you wish to communicate with someone, either online or through other digital technologies.

You have the responsibility to be respectful when communicating with others electronically and you should always inform a responsible adult if something makes you feel uncomfortable or you become suspicious of another user's behaviour.

You have the right to choose whether to fill out forms or answer questions you find on the Internet.

You have the responsibility to do this accurately and legally.

You have the right to object to being videoed or photographed by anyone using cameras, web cams, or mobile phones.

You have the responsibility to protect yourself, by behaving in a way that will avoid embarrassment when videos and photographs are being taken.

You have the right to object to any videos or images of yourself being placed on the Internet, and to request that they are removed.

You have the responsibility to use images and videos of yourself and others in a respectful and legal manner.

Blackburn with Darwen L.S.C.B
In conjunction with St Thomas's Centre
January 2010.